Rex Russell Public Live Performance License

Song-specific permission for I Ain’t Over You Yet | Effective October 6, 2026

Permission

This license applies only to I Ain’t Over You Yet, written and fully controlled by Rex Russell. Rex grants musicians, bands, and venues a nonexclusive, worldwide license, with no fee payable directly to him, to perform this song at a live venue or in a livestream. They may record and post those performances, including on YouTube, Facebook, Instagram, and TikTok, and may earn money from paid shows, livestreams, and posts. No application or signature is required.

This direct permission includes using Rex-controlled released recordings and backing tracks in those performances and related posts. Performers may make ordinary live arrangement choices and edit performance videos for length. It does not override platform rules or rights and revenue collection administered by CD Baby or any applicable collection society.

Required public credit

At each live performance, clearly announce before or immediately after the song: “I Ain’t Over You Yet — written and originally produced by Rex Russell.” If a spoken announcement is impractical, display that credit clearly to the audience during the performance.

For every uploaded performance or livestream archive, put the same credit in the public caption or description, and keep it there while the post is available. Credit is the condition of this permission. If it is omitted, add or correct it promptly; an uncredited use is outside this license.

Platform claims and revenue

Rex charges no separate direct license fee. His music remains enrolled in CD Baby Social Video Monetization on YouTube, Facebook/Instagram, and TikTok. CD Baby may identify, claim, and collect revenue on posts using his music, including licensed posts. Its published agreement retains 30% of amounts CD Baby receives; Rex receives the balance after that fee and any applicable costs, with platform shares taken earlier. A claim may redirect an uploader’s ad revenue. Credit does not prevent claims or exempt a post from these collections.

This license promises neither claim-free posting nor claim release or any uploader revenue share. If a claim arises, the uploader may use this PDF to document Rex’s direct permission; CD Baby or the platform may still require review. Contact Rex below for help confirming permission.

Limits and contact

This license covers I Ain’t Over You Yet and Rex-controlled recordings and backing tracks only for live performances, livestreams, and posts of those performances. It does not transfer ownership, grant third-party rights, authorize unrelated advertisements or films, or authorize stand-alone audio distribution of a master recording. Venues and platforms remain responsible for applicable rules, reporting, and any performance or other royalties administered by others.

Rex Russell | rexrussell.com | rex.russell.music@gmail.com
CD Baby program details: Social Video Monetization Addendum. Platform and distributor terms may change after this issue date.